

09-19

The image displays a 10x10 grid of 100 small clusters of black dots. Each cluster represents a unique pattern, ranging from simple linear arrangements to more complex, interconnected shapes. The patterns are distributed across the grid in a way that suggests a random or semi-random selection of configurations. The dots are arranged in a way that suggests a random or semi-random distribution of these patterns across the grid.