curious, so she dug some squirrel food up to see what it was, but then she forgot to put it back. The squirrel came back and looked in its hiding place, but the food was nowhere to be found. Then the match went out, and it wasn't the forest that remained before her eyes. It was only the thick, damp, cold wall.