04-01

Once upon a time, the birds took it into their heads that they would like a master, and that one of their number must be chosen king. A meeting of all the birds was called, and though they understood the birds who were from the most distant lands would be unable to come, many birds came from far away meadows and woods. The eagle, who already thought