04-07

Then the birds below called with one accord, "Come back, come back! It is you who must be our king because no one can fly as high as you." "Except me!" cried a shrill, shrill voice, and out of the blue the little bird without a name rose from the eagle's back, where he had lain hidden in the feathers. His guile was the