04-12

All the other birds tried to hide themselves in the ground, too, until they were practically blue in the face. The nameless little bird that was as bold as brass found a pitch dark mouse's hole, and creeping in cried, "I am king! I am king!" but it was of no avail. "You, our king!?" all the