07-05

phone was still bugging her out loud as she sighed, "I never should have given you that phone, Lucy." "No, it's fine, I love it," said Lucy knowing that affording the phone had been no small thing for her mother. It had been nothing but trouble though. Lucy did not know who it was that was sending her the messages, and she did not know