07-17

She knew she owed them big time for reminding her what she was capable of and who she really was. The next time her phone bleeped she would tap the message straight into oblivion where it belonged.