meant to detect sound waves generated by Soviet atomic bomb tests and ballistic missiles. The second report, released two years later, in 1997, concluded that reports of recovered alien bodies were likely a combination of: innocently transformed memories of military