09-14

holding contracts to purchase tulips at prices now ten times greater than those on the open market, while others found themselves in possession of bulbs now worth a fraction of the price they had paid. The event was popularized in 1841 by the book Extraordinary Popular Delusions and the Madness of