feel that the tic must be expressed. Tics in response to an environmental trigger can appear to be voluntary or purposeful but are not. Many people with Tourette's experience additional neurobehavioral problems that include inattention, hyperactivity, and