

02-08

he blew them apart and told them to hurry down, fast and furious to the earth so they could have a fighting chance of reaching the ocean. Down they went, rolling over each other until with a patter and clatter and spatter they touched the ground, and all the people that the raindrops fell on cried, "It's raining", and took out their umbrellas. Some