

05-10

whispered something into his ear that caused the barber to shake his head, like he was telling her, "No". In response, the matron walked over to a little man sitting in an office chair that squeaked as it rolled around the floor and spoke to him. It was the little man who then walked over and said something to the man who was cutting my hair.