

05-15

could. To show his anger, the man hit the wall with his hand and then walked outside where he stood against the brick wall, smoking a cigarette. I understood right there my haircut was something that had been out of the power of the barber and then I slowly walked outside to join the man. He looked down, smiled at me, and then he patted me on the