

07-09

her mother she would participate in the show. "To waste your talent would be a real shame, for you have such a beautiful voice," her mother had argued two months back when the concert was first announced. Lucy had been considering it, for she did love to sing. That very night the first text message had come through. "How does it feel to be