03-05

shoulders, the snowflakes kept landing, but she did not notice them as she shivered along. She was losing strength and beginning to doubt she could weather this storm. It was New Year's and the girl asked herself why as lights shone from every window, and the savory smell of roast goose crept out on the streets, she was outside all alone.