03-13

visit every Sunday, who had told her that when a star falls, a soul leaves this earth. It was her last match that the little girl now rubbed on the wall and the light again shone round her. Her old grandmother in the brightness stood, loving in her appearance. The girl understood her grandmother would soon disappear, but she tried to play for time.