04-14

carefully night and day. Then all the birds went home to bed, for they were very tired, but the owl assigned by the birds to stand guard found his job was lonely and wearisome because he was just sitting alone staring at the mouse's hole. I can close one eye and watch with the other, he thought. So he closed one eye and