05-16

wall, smoking a cigarette. I understood right there my haircut was something that had been out of the power of the barber and then I slowly walked outside to join the man. He looked down, smiled at me, and then he patted me on the top of my bald as a coot head. It was a fact of my life that I was not gonna have hair that was