months. As the flowers grew in popularity, professional growers paid higher and higher prices for bulbs with the virus. By sixteen thirty-four, in part as a result of demand from the French, speculators began to enter the market. In sixteen thirty-six, the Dutch created