09-12

a type of formal futures markets which merchants used to sell and buy contracts to buy bulbs at the end of the season. Traders met at taverns and buyers were required to pay a fee per trade. People were purchasing bulbs at higher and higher prices, intending to re-sell them for a profit.