symptoms of Tourette's are first noticed, with the average onset between the ages of seven and ten years. It is estimated that two hundred thousand Americans have the most severe form of Tourette's, and as many as one in a hundred people exhibit milder and less complex symptoms that include chronic motor and