

04-10

new challenging task. Then we can decide who should be the real king.: Then the birds gathered together again and decided the case would be resolved by making a new condition, which was that he should be king who could go the deepest into the earth. So the little bird who the other birds despised was now back to square one. Confident, he remained,